

Press Release – EU Project IUSES

ENVIROS, s. r. o., the Czech partner of the IUSES Project – Intelligent Use of Energy at School, organised the press release on 30th September 2009.

The main reason of this event was to inform public about the project idea – to educate and make aware students from secondary schools about energy efficiency in everyday life. During this school year 2009–2010 any teenager or school can participate in European Energy Saving Award where all participants can submit their application forms till 15th December 2009.

There is a one-day special workshop organised for teachers that will be held in ENVIROS premises on 10th November 2009. During this workshop three new handbooks will be presented – all three are focused on energy savings in industry, buildings and transport and Teachers Guide, which could help teachers by dissemination of the idea.

As a bonus every teacher will receive free of charge a tool-kit which can help by experiments to demonstrate some energy saving effects. More details about the project are permanently updated on project website www.iuses.eu, where also some interactive animations connected with energy savings will be soon activated.
